A FRESH PERSPECTIVE FOR PARIS’S PREMIER FURNITURE FAIR

By French Heritage 3 September 2021

The French Heritage Salons, the leading fair of antique furniture, is set to take an innovative turn this year. Instead of its usual format in the Grand Palais, the fair will have a new location in the Palais de Tokyo. The move is aimed at providing a fresh perspective on the traditional art of furniture-making.

The Palais de Tokyo, a modernist architectural masterpiece designed by architect Pierre Chareau, is expected to offer a unique backdrop for the fair. The exhibition space will be divided into three areas: Modern, Contemporary, and High Art.

In the Modern section, visitors can expect to see classic pieces from renowned French furniture makers such as Hugues Dubois, Jean-Michel Frank, and Georges Jacob. The Contemporary section will feature works from emerging designers who have already made names for themselves in the world of furniture design, while the High Art section will showcase pieces that push the boundaries of innovation and craftsmanship.

The fair will also feature a series of talks and workshops led by experts in the field. These sessions will provide insights into the history of furniture design and the latest trends in the industry.

In addition to the exhibits, visitors can enjoy a range of other activities. The fair will include a selection of vintage furniture, antiques, and decorative arts. There will also be a food market, where visitors can sample local delicacies and beverages.

The French Heritage Salons are known for their high standards of quality and craftsmanship. The move to the Palais de Tokyo is expected to attract even more visitors to the fair, who will be able to appreciate the beauty and ingenuity of furniture design in a modern and dynamic setting.

The fair will be open from 30 September to 4 October, and tickets are now on sale. For more information, visit the official website.
